Saul 40yrs Acts 13:21
2nd year 1Sa 13:1,2
We don't know the length of time that passed from Saul's death to Abner making Ishbosheth king. If 2Sa 2 is written chronologically then it happened not long after David was made king and potentially the same year as is supposed here.
We don't know the length of time that passed from Saul's death to the anointing of David as king. It is supposed here that both occurred in the same year.

IMPORTANT NOTES
Exact year numbers from the King James Bible are used with no alterations and are easily identified by their scripture references that accompany them. All calculations are based on the data given to us in the Bible only.
The old testament uses inclusive counting throughout. This chart currently does not distinguish between the religious (Haggai & Zechariah) and the civil/regnal calendars (1Ki 6).
Notes and calculations in red (like this one) contain or are based on information that we cannot confirm in the Bible whether that be extra-Biblical sources or simply information that the Bible does not give us.
"reigned in his stead" might not mean what you think it means: it does not necessarily mean that one king's reign ended and the next king's reign began immediately after. For example, after reading 1Ki 16:28-29 we might think that Ahab's reign began after Omri died but as we can see below in the chart, when we look at all the data that we are given, their reigns overlap by 5 years. After reading 2Ki 14:18-21 we might think that Azariah/Uzziah's reign began soon after the death of his father Amaziah. But, as we can see below, when we put together all the data we are given, there is a 13 year gap between their reigns.
When we aren't told precisely when a king began to reign relative to another a reasonable guess has been made based on the Bible text and notes have been added similar to the one you can see to the left of this note.
All reign shape sizes are drawn to scale vertically except where the size would be smaller than the smallest available (0.01 inches or 1 month, 6 days). The formula for scaling is number of years times 0.1 equals the number of inches used or (y * 0.1) = i. For example, 39 years equals 3.9 inches.
All month, day, and year calculations are based on a 360-day-per-year calendar which aligns precisely with the Biblical calendar (compare Daniel with Revelation).
We don't know which year of David's life that Solomon was anointed king (1Ki 1). The latest would be his last year which is supposed here.
